

BRIGHTBYTES IN WCCUSD

Dear Korematsu Parent/Guardian,

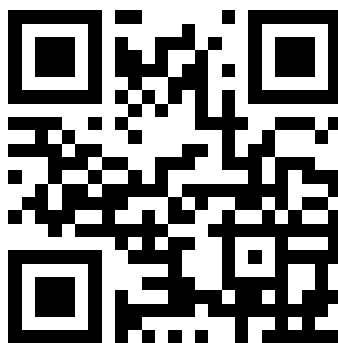

During the 2014-15 school year, our district will be partnering with BrightBytes, an educational software company, so that we can learn more about our school's technology use for student learning. Our goal is to gather baseline and continuous data on technology access and skills, and on our district's technology environment, in order to understand the connection between technology use and student achievement.

To gain these insights, we must provide BrightBytes with a complete picture of technology use at school and at home within our district. We will be asking students, teachers, and parents to participate in a project to help us gather this data.

Your participation and support is important to us and will make the difference between having a complete versus a limited understanding of our district's technology use. Our first step is to gather data from you, the members of our parent community. Below is a link to the parent survey, as well as a QR code which can be scanned with a mobile device running a QR code reader. This will allow you to access the survey on your smartphone or another mobile device (such as a tablet). Please note that the survey is short and should only take about 5 to 8 minutes of your time.
